

Kentucky Firearms Freedom Act

The Kentucky Firearms Freedom Act is nearly identical to laws already enacted in Montana and Tennessee. If passed, firearms and ammunition manufactured in Kentucky and sold in Kentucky would no longer be regulated in any way by the federal government. There would be no FBI background check and no BATFE Form 4473 paperwork. Kentucky would probably decide to have the state police run background checks, but there would be no federal authority or involvement over these intrastate sales. The 1934 National Firearms Act and the 1968 Gun Control Act would no longer apply to intrastate sales. By insulating ourselves from federal gun laws, any future federal gun ban such as a reintroduction of a stricter version of the previous Brady Bill would not apply.

The Kentucky Firearms Freedom Act, HB87, was pre-filed for the 2010 legislative session by Representative Stan Lee. The identical Senate version of the bill, SB122 was filed by John Schickel. The KFFA would already apply to at least three different rifles that are currently manufactured in Kentucky, the DoubleStar AR-15 manufactured in Winchester, the Bluegrass Armory .50 BMG Viper manufactured in Richmond, and the Remington 597 manufactured in Mayfield, and if passed there would certainly be more firearms manufacturers that would provide quality firearms free from federal government infringements.

There is great popular support for the KFFA, but there are legislators who are opposing it, mostly because of Democrat versus Republican bickering.
